“Life is a journey, pack carefully”
Poor social and emotional skills

- Less Connected
- Difficult Relationships
- Less likely to Meet Expectations in school

Resilience for life’s journey forever!

Social emotional health in the suitcase now...

Resilience
The ability to recover from or adjust to misfortune or change

The ability to bounce back

An emotional container is...

The holding environment you create for children and families. The place where you not only physically hold people, but where you hold their emotions, their experiences and their process. A place where children and families feel trust, affirmation and empowerment rather than judgment, criticism and correction.

What do you “hold” every day that empties your pitcher?
REACT vs. REFLECT

- Loss of creativity
- Loss of patience
- Limited long term thinking
- Limited attention to details
- Quick decisions (not well thought out)
- Less conversation
- Fewer thoughtful questions
- Take children’s behavior personally
- Self-doubt
- Put off problems
- Consumed with worry for the future
- A belief that the child is in control of your emotions
- Loss of personal control
- Sense of dread
- Loss of the joy

“Everyone you meet is fighting a battle you know nothing about. Be kind. Always.”

“How you are is as important as what you do.”
- Dr. Jeree Pawl

“Given the emotionally evocative nature and the complexity of work with very young children and families who are vulnerable, it is imperative that practitioners across disciplines have time to pause and reflect.”

1. “We all have something in life that puts the sparkle in our eyes.”

2. “Life comes at us and knocks us down at times. We have to pick ourselves up and keep moving forward.”

3. “Even if you are already a strong, happy person you will want to continue building yourself up to maintain or increase your level of well-being.”

4. “Don’t hide your creativity! Don’t keep your skills only to yourself; use them to benefit others.”

5. “You are worth it.”

6. “It takes a fair amount of reflection and practice to change any negative thoughts we might have and to integrate new behaviors that are good for us.”

7. “Behavior change takes time.”

8. “You may have many strong relationships or maybe just a few. The number does not matter. What matters is what the relationship brings to your life.”
The Devereux Adult Resiliency Survey (DARS) is a 23-item reflective checklist that provides adults with information about their personal strengths. The information can be used to help individuals build on these strengths, such as creativity and setting limits, so that they can better cope with the adversity and stresses of daily life.

Reflection Question

- How do you think that went?
- How did you feel during that...?
- When are things good?
- What is the most challenging part for you?
- What would be most helpful to you?
- What were you feeling when the child...?
- What were you feeling when the caregiver...?
- What are you resisting?
- What is the lesson here?
- Have you been here before?
- Are you losing energy to this?
- Are you holding on to something you need to let go of?
- Are you in the present?
- What do you need to do now?
- Who’s in control here?
- What is your responsibility here?
- Are you at peace with this?
